

Stephen Williamson:

Following a motor vehicle collision in New York State, it's important to consult with an experienced automobile collision attorney because among other reasons, you have 30 days to file a no-fault claim to ensure that your medical benefits and any lost wages are covered under New York no-fault. When clients come to us following a motor vehicle collision, part of the service that we offer is we handle the no-fault. We will communicate with the providers, meaning if you've already been to the hospital, if you've already been in an ambulance, we will contact those providers and tell them we represent you.

This is the no-fault information. The medical bill should not be sent to you. They should be sent to the insurance company for payment. We will file your no-fault claim with your insurance company or the insurance company for the car that you're in at the time of the accident to ensure that all your medical bills are paid.
